

Platinum Wealth Advisory's Privacy Policy

At Platinum Wealth Advisory we are committed to protecting your privacy in accordance with the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) and the Australian Privacy Principles. This Privacy Policy describes our current policies and practices in relation to the collection, handling, use and disclosure of personal information. It also deals with how you can complain about a breach of the privacy laws and how you can access the personal information we hold and how to have that information corrected.

What information do we collect and how do we use it?

As a provider of financial services we collect and hold information about you that is both relevant and necessary in order for us to provide those services. The types of information we hold depends on the services provided. We may also collect personal information from our shareholders and as required by law. When we collect your personal information, we will normally tell you why the information is collected, who it will be shared with, and inform you of the consequences if all or part of the information is not provided to us.

Personal information is any information that could identify you or be used to establish your identity. Examples of personal information that may be collected by us include but are not limited to: name, address, marital status, date of birth, type of employment, medical reports including medical history, financial reports, tax returns and previous insurance history. We will only collect personal information that is necessary for the legitimate business functions of providing the services you have requested.

On occasions, we need to collect and use sensitive information, such as when we consider applications for some insurance products.

Sensitive information includes information or an opinion relating to a person's racial or ethnic origin, political views or memberships, religious beliefs or affiliations, membership of a professional or trade association or trade union, sexual orientation or practices and criminal record. It also includes information about a person's health and medical history.

The Australian Privacy Principles set out restrictions about the way sensitive information can be used.

Unless you give us your consent, or if we are required or permitted by law, we will only use or disclose sensitive information for the purposes for which it was provided.

In order to provide the service/s you have requested, there may be occasions when information about you is obtained from others – for example, in collecting information in order to make a claim under your insurance policy. Under these circumstances, the people providing this information are also regulated by the Privacy Act.

You may choose not to provide personal information about you to us, but this may limit the services we are able to provide to you.

When do we disclose your information overseas?

Some of the entities we share information with may be located in, or have operations in, other countries. The current list of countries to which your personal information could be sent is set out below:

- Platinum Wealth Advisory may also use outsourced administrative/paraplanning services where some of the information (including health information) collected by us may be disclosed outside of Australia, including but not limited to the Philippines.

We normally require any external organisations with whom we share your personal information to comply with the Australian Privacy Principles.

How do we hold and protect your information?

We strive to maintain the reliability, accuracy, completeness and currency of the personal information we hold and to protect its privacy and security. We keep personal information only for as long as is reasonably necessary for the purpose for which it was collected or to comply with any applicable legal or ethical reporting or document retention requirements.

We hold the information we collect from you initially in a working file, which when completed will either be archived or electronically imaged and stored.

We ensure that your information is safe by protecting it from unauthorised access, modification and disclosure. We maintain physical security over our paper and electronic data and premises, by using locks and security systems. We also maintain computer and network security; for example, we use firewalls (security measures for the Internet) and other security systems such as user identifiers and passwords to control access to computer systems where your information is stored.

We also use your information to send you requested information and promotional material and to enable us to contact you for provision of services.

We may occasionally notify you about new services and special offers, events or articles we think will be of interest to you. We may send you regular updates by email or by post. If you would rather not receive this information or do not wish to receive it electronically, email or write to us.

Who do we share personal information with?

We do not sell, trade, or rent your personal information to others.

From time to time we may share your personal information with other entities outside of [Licensee Name].

The entities that we might share your personal information with could include:

- service providers and specialist advisers we engage to provide us with services such as administrative, financial, insurance or research services, some of whom may contact you on our behalf;
- insurers and credit providers;
- courts, tribunals and the Australian Financial Complaints Authority (AFCA) as our external dispute resolution body in the course of a dispute;
- anyone authorised by you or to whom you have provided your consent (either expressly or impliedly), including but not limited to other financial services providers that we may need to deal with on your behalf;
- anyone to whom we are required or authorised by law to disclose your personal information (for example, law enforcement agencies, and national and international government and regulatory authorities including but not limited to the Australian Taxation Office, the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority, the Australian Securities and Investments Commission, the Australian Transaction Reports and Analysis Centre and the United States Internal Revenue Service);
- other financial services institutions – in order to detect, investigate or prevent actual or potential fraud in connection with the products or services we provide to you.

Opting out

If we send you any information about services or products, or you do not want us to disclose your personal information to any other organisation (including related bodies corporate) you can opt out by calling us.

How can you check, update or change the information we are holding?

You may have access to the personal information [Licensee Name] holds on your behalf on request, except in circumstances where access may be denied under the Privacy Act. We reserve the right to determine the manner in which the information is accessed.

Upon receipt of your written request and enough information to allow us to identify the information, we will disclose to you the personal information we hold about you. We will also correct, amend or delete any personal information that we agree is inaccurate, irrelevant, out of date or incomplete.

If you wish to access or correct your personal information, please write to our Privacy Officer
